Institute of South-South Cooperation and Development

The idea that China establishes the Institute of South-South Cooperation and Development was initiated and announced by Chinese President XI Jinping during the High-Level Roundtable on South-South Cooperation at the 70th Anniversary Celebration of the United Nations in New York on September 26, 2015. With strong support from the Chinese Ministry of Commerce, the Ministry of Education, and the Ministry of Finance, and by virtue of Peking University's strength in humanities and social sciences, Institute of South-South Cooperation and Development (ISSCAD) was officially established at the National School of Development of Peking University (NSD) on April 29, 2016. President XI Jinping has announced that China will enhance development experience-sharing and capacity-building cooperation with other countries through the platform of the Institute of South-South Cooperation and Development during his host of the dialogue of Emerging Market and Developing Countries on September 5, 2017 in Xiamen, Fujian.

Combining local knowledge with global vision, the new Institute is committed to excellence in national development research, talent training for developing countries, and dynamic exchange platform for global cooperation, and devoted to promoting equitable, inclusive and sustainable growth by sharing knowledge and experience on matters of public leadership and national development, with developing and especially the least developed countries.

The core faculty of ISSCAD draws heavily from NSD, which has an established reputation both academically and as a policy think-tank in China. Well aware that to craft effective solutions to complex real-world problems would require a multidisciplinary and actionable approach, the core faculty is also supported synergistically by a scalable network of select faculty and professional (including senior government officials) associates from other schools and departments of Peking University and beyond. The purpose is to nurture a vibrant interdisciplinary learning environment that encourages intense inquiry, open dialogue, and cross-cultural learning, and serves as a bridge between theory and practice.

The Institute offers both degree and non-degree executive educational programs. Our degree programs feature a rigorous economics-centered and problem-solving oriented curriculum which also covers quantitative analysis, political institutions, strategic management, leadership, and globalization.

A flagship of internationalization of education at Peking University, the Institute offers regular semester-based courses in English. Through these regular courses, supplemented by fieldwork and workshops on various policy domains (such as education and poverty reduction, population and public health, social security and public safety, urban development and land reform, energy and environment, technological innovation, and global governance and foreign policy), students are expected to develop a box of conceptual tools that is cross-disciplinary in nature but adapted for actions appropriate for local or country-specific conditions. On behalf of the Institute's first 26 master students, a student representative read out a thank-you letter to President XI Jinping at their Commencement Ceremony on July 16, 2017, thanking China for giving them the opportunity to learn more about the country's experiences in reform and opening-up. On October 11, 2017, President XI Jiping encouraged graduates of the Institute of South-South Cooperation and Development at Peking University to be leaders of reform and development in their own countries by replying them the letter.

※ Chinese Government Scholarships

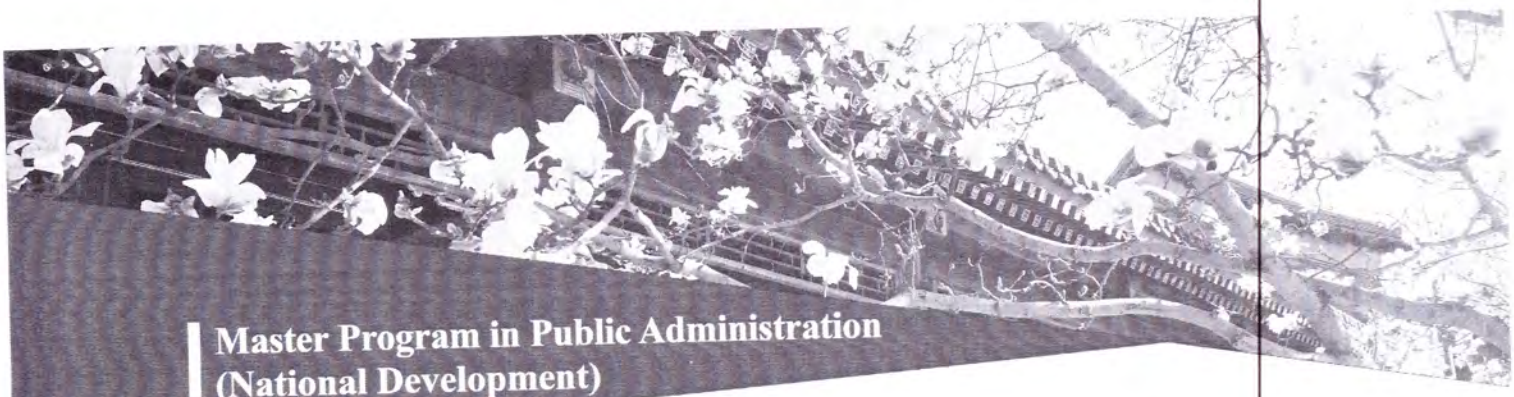
Foreign aids in the form of Chinese Government Scholarships are available upon application by candidates from developing countries.

※ Peking University

Peking University was founded in 1898, located in the northwestern part of Beijing city. Upholding a spirit of academic freedom and inclusiveness, Peking University has been devoted to excellence in teaching, learning, and research in a wide range of disciplines, and has been home to a number of experts and scholars renowned both in China and around the world.

Peking University embraces about 7,000 faculty members and over 42,250 undergraduate and graduate degree candidates, including international students. It has become a cradle for high-caliber talent, an incubator for innovation and research, and a platform for international cooperation and exchanges.

National development calls for public leaders who care deeply about the world, countries and communities, and are prepared to engage and be engaged in shaping a better future with vision, passion, courage and wisdom to turn ideas into action. If you are prepared to engage and be engaged in shaping a better future, we at the Institute of South-South Cooperation and Development at Peking University invite you to be part of an exciting learning expedition.



Master Program in Public Administration (National Development)

Our one-year Master Program in Public Administration (National Development) is an economics-centered multidisciplinary program that combines rigorous analytical work with emphasis on public policy and leadership. It is designed for mid-career candidates with a record of academic distinction and exceptional professional accomplishment and promise. Candidates for this program are expected to have obtained an undergraduate degree or above in a relevant field and at least three years of substantial work experience, typically in government or public sector. Through a structured program of courses, workshops, and field trips within one year, students before graduation from this program should have earned a total of 40 credits (including a course on Chinese language), which culminate in submitting an applied thesis written under the guidance of an academic advisor.

◆ Program Requirement

All ISSCAD degree candidates have course load requirements to ensure the successful completion of their designated degree program by the date of graduation. The following table shows the number of credits required for graduation in the master degree program offered at the Institute.

China Immersion Program

During the first semester, students are required to attend a China Immersion Program, which is composed of a series of lectures, covering various topics related to national development, such as political institutions and national governance, economic system reform and development planning, China's opening up and globalization, peace-development-cooperation foreign policy, "One Belt, One Road" initiative, educational reform in China, etc.

Chinese Language Course

In accordance with Peking University's regulation, all international students are required to take a one-semester Chinese language course which is worth 2 credits.

Field Study

Field study trips will be arranged for students to visit China's special economic zones, industrial clusters, government agencies, and business corporations, to gain first-hand knowledge of how governments and markets operate under various changing conditions in the reform and opening-up process of China, and to learn about China's success and lessons in economic development. All students are required to participate in the field study trips, which will take place in both fall and spring semesters.

◆ Thesis

The thesis shall be written in English, and under the guidance of an advisor.

The thesis shall make an attempt to tackle a major issue emerging from the development practices of the student's home country. Students are expected to apply the theories, knowledge and analytical skills acquired from the program to examine the phenomena, analyze inherent principles, and finally produce a quality paper with both academic value and practical implications.

By the end of the first semester, a student shall choose a professor as his/her advisor, and determine the subject matter of the thesis. In the second semester, students are expected to complete their thesis and pass an oral defense.

◆ Degree Conferment

A master degree of Management will be conferred upon a candidate in the master's program after his/her successful completion of the required credits and a thesis.

Doctoral Program in National Development

Our three-year Doctoral Program in National Development is designed to prepare high-caliber talent and national leaders who are equipped with theories and knowledge, acquainted with China's development experience, and are capable of making decisions and policies related to national development with real-world conditions of his/her own country taken into consideration. Candidates who have demonstrated a proven record of high academic and professional accomplishment and who wish to further hone their skills of leadership and elevate their knowledge on development-related work are encouraged to apply. Minimal academic requirement for the Doctoral program is a graduate degree in a relevant field at the master level or above and at least five years of substantial work experience. Through a structured program of courses, workshops, and field trips which add to a total 31 credits (including a course on Chinese language), students are expected to develop a conceptual tool kit that draws on the social sciences but is adapted for applications in the real world. The program culminates in students submitting a dissertation with both academic and practical values completed under the guidance of an academic advisor.

All students are required to participate in the field study trips, which will take place in both fall and spring semesters.

Other Elective Courses

Doctoral students have the opportunity to take more elective courses on Management and Economics during their 2nd and 3rd year of study, after they have completed the required credits.

◆ Independent Research

Students are encouraged to come to ISSCAD with practical problems to be solved in relation to political, economic or social development of the student's home country. Guided by a supervisor, a Doctoral student is expected to utilize what she/he has learned during the program, carry out independent research by means of literature review, data collection, comparative analysis, field studies, etc., and finally produce a policy report that has both practical implications and social impacts, and is able to give a boost to the national development and social advancement of the student's own country.

◆ Dissertation

The Doctoral dissertation shall be written in English, and under the guidance of an advisor.

The dissertation shall demonstrate that the candidate has had a deep understanding of the theories and knowledge of national development and has made serious and thorough reflections in this regard. Under the guidance of an advisor, and on the basis of the independent research conducted previously, students are expected to make use of the theories, knowledge and analytical skills acquired from the program to examine phenomena, analyze inherent principles, and finally produce a dissertation with both academic value and realistic significance.

A student shall choose a professor as his/her advisor in the first semester, and determine the subject matter under the guidance of an advisor in the second semester. After having successfully passed the comprehensive examination and an oral defense of the thesis prospectus by the end of the first year, students are expected to spend the next one and a half years searching for evidence from the real world, conducting academic research and composing the dissertation. In the sixth semester, they shall finalize and defend their dissertation. A Doctoral thesis must pass high standards, and will be evaluated on the basis of its originality, academic contribution, and practical value.

◆ Degree Conferment

A Doctoral degree in Economics will be conferred upon a candidate in the doctoral program after his/her successful completion of the required credits and a dissertation.

Professional Associates

At ISSCAD, we take great pride in the connections we make between the classroom and the real world. Our robust network of faculty and professional associates bring together scholars, researchers, senior public officials, business leaders, social entrepreneurs, journalists, educators and students to teach and learn from each other in workshops and seminars. Drawing on their collective intelligence and wisdom, this unique learning environment provides a stimulating setting in which to hone leadership skills, develop cultural sensitivities, track developmental trends, debate new ideas and generate smart policies that help solve public problems. In the same spirit, we also sponsor Peking University Public Policy Forum International - a platform of education and dialogue that brings prominent speakers from around the world to address today's most challenging global issues from entrenched poverty to disease control to climate change.

Financial Aid

Chinese Government Scholarship are provided for students admitted from developing countries through the Economic and Commercial Counselor's Office of the Chinese Embassy. The scholarship will cover tuition, living expenses, accommodation, textbooks and costs related to study trips. It also includes round-trip international airfares (one time per year set at the end of an academic year). In terms of living expenses, it is 36000 RMB/year for the master program, and 42000 RMB/year for the Doctoral program. There is also a settlement allowance of 3000 RMB/person.

If a student expects to have his/her spouse, children, relatives or friends to visit him/her during the stay in Beijing, the visitor will have to bear all the expenses by him/herself.
